Our new wing adds an exciting facet to High Point Central High.

The center of Central High's kaleidoscopic world is the buzzing General Office.

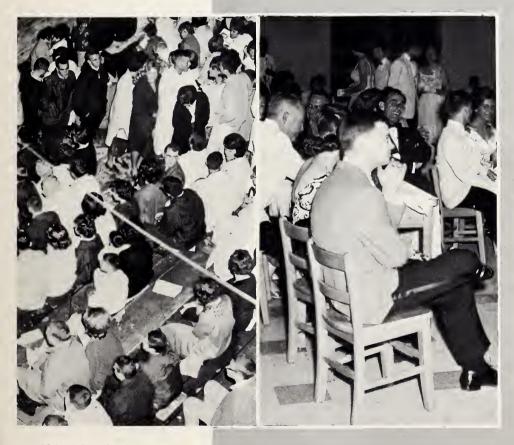

In kaleidoscopic retrospect, the pages of the 1964 PEMI-CAN reveal the progress and activities of the school year. The variety of images we have projected is truly remarkable. Each has been colored by the optimism, enthusiasm, and spirit of High Point Central High students. It is our hope that these qualities will live on in the hearts of the students and that they will be kindled a new with each reviewing of this, the twentieth volume of our yearbook.

Like the kaleidoscope that produces an infinity of multicolored patterns, Central High School is a composite of ever-changing, fascinating experiences. Some of the conscious events that compose school life are dark and gloomy: others glow with the brightness of common, everyday actuality; and still others scintillate with the brilliance of proud accomplishment. The many-faceted personalities that make up the kaleidoscopic world of Central High have projected their own images upon all the endeavors of school life. As they seek new horizons and new goals, they carry with them that vital spark, which is the true gift of their Alma Mater.

Although school spirit is present in all activities, it shows best at football games.

The Junior-Senior prom marks the last and most memorable social event of all high school years.

WE DEDICATE:

We dedicate to one who has unselfishly given of herself in both the scholastic and extra-curricular realms of our school. Not only has she been a guiding force in the molding of the basic English foundation of countless sophomores, but also she has devoted innumerable hours in the development of the PEMICAN to the position of a nationally recognized yearbook. It is for the latter, especially, that we pay tribute and express deep appreciation to Miss Louise Tapp — an enthusiastic, understanding, and patient friend of High Point Central students.

ADMINISTRATION

This year brought several innovations to the High Point Schools, some of which concerned Central High School closely. The school board made a change in the school lunch program, which will go into effect next year. Also, Mr. William C. Berry, formerly a principal in the city schools, took up his duties as director of instruction and guided the high school teachers in coordinating their aims and activities towards more effective teaching. The high school library was renovated and modernized, and more books and materials were added to the collection.

The school board, headed by Mr. William A. Tomlinson, worked closely with Superintendent Dean B. Pruette, Assistant Superintendent Lloyd Y. Thayer, and Principal W. J. Scott toward advancing Central High School and providing better educational opportunities for all students.

Advising in future college and career plans, Mrs. Janet R. McCurry is a guiding force in the lives of underclassmen.

Senior guidance counselor, Miss Frances Haywood, makes appointments to aid college-bound students.

In his position as dean, Mr. Ralph H. Vance aids students with their problems and gives much helpful advice.

Beginning the year in a newly-furnished office, Dean Ralph H. Vance supervised the clinic and handled school attendance to keep absences to a minimum. In addition, he interviewed parents and handled matters of a disciplinary nature. In the midst of his many duties, he frequently found time to locate job opportunities for boys.

With the expansion of guidance work in 1963-64, Mrs. Evelyn S. Harris joined Miss Frances Haywood and Mrs. Janet R. McCurry in counseling services. Mrs. Harris and Mrs. McCurry had charge of guidance for underclassmen, while Miss Haywood counseled members of the senior class. In addition to their duties of testing and guiding, the counselors sponsored two of the most enlightening programs of the year—College Day and Career Day.

Mrs. Evelyn Harris, new assistant to Mrs. Teague and the guidance staff, adds her sparkling personality to the General Office.

Indispensable to the school program were three efficient people in the General Office. As treasurer of Central High, Mrs. Jackson performed a number of duties which include finding substitute teachers, ordering supplies, taking telephone calls, making trips to the bank and post office, writing a daily quota of checks, and filing all insurance claims. Mrs. Teague, secretary of Central High, made transcripts for college-bound students and kept records for all students, compiled attendance reports, and assisted with the preparation of the master schedule for the school year. In addition to her duties as teacher and counselor, Mrs. Harris assisted Mrs. Teague in answering letters, preparing transcripts for students, and keeping office records.

CURRICULUM ... English, Latin, speech

Senior English students Steve Bernard, Pat Seamon, Vickie Morgan, and Mary Ghosn learn about England from Miss Young's bulletin board.

English teachers of Central High urged students to strive for mastery as they worked on essential grammar and spelling in college preparatory and general English classes. Sophomores entering English classes wrote themes, learned unfamiliar grammar rules, diagrammed sentences, made book reports, did innumerable drills, and read plays and poetry. Juniors wrote essays and studied American prose and poetry. Seniors explored England's literary background and discovered the worlds of Chaucer, Shakespeare, and Milton, as well as other great writers of the past. They prepared term papers, made oral reports, and read works of contemporary writers. To all students, the library was available for reference, parallel readings, and research papers.

In Miss Goodman's English class, Judy Christensen exhibits a model of an Elizabethan theater to Kathy Baxter, Jimmy Minor, and Doug Howard.

Miss Hunter shows how Latin is applied in the profession of law.

Latin students, under the direction of Miss Louise Hunter, "subjugated" their drills in declensions, gained a basic knowledge of word roots and derivations, and increased their knowledge of the people who spoke Latin and of the contributions of the Roman civilization to the new world. In addition, they gained experience in organized thinking and discovered in the study of Latin a valuable key to understanding Romance languages and English grammar.

In the speech laboratory, completed a year ago, students of the speech department received valuable training in dramatics, parliamentary procedure, panel discussions, and story-telling. The specially-designed equipment in the speech laboratory aided students in gaining the poise and dramatic composure necessary to effective public speaking.

courses prove language is part of living

One of Miss Goodman's speech class students searches a daily newspaper for vital information to be used in a United Nations discussion.

Miss Hunter demonstrates to her Latin students the correct order of the Latin sentence.

Laboratory vitalizes language lessons

Mr. Scott's Spanish class acts out a brief dialogue, showing the emphasis on spoken language.

Miss Weaver instructs her French students concerning the proper use of laboratory equipment.

Conversing in Spanish or French or translating selections from literature, more than half of the students enrolled at Central High pursued their study of foreign languages. Through a language they gained knowledge of a country's culture and history and learned of its contributions to the fields of art, music, literature, and philosophy. Soon they became aware of the borrowing of their own language from foreign tongues and realized the importance of proficiency in speaking and writing Romance languages.

The new language laboratory provided a way for students to compare their pronunciation and intonation with that of a proficient speaker. The laboratory method enabled the teacher to become more aware of the students' individual errors and to give each person special assistance.

Laboratory instruction in French is stressed to keep up with the demand for a practical use of the language.

Wide reading aids history discussions

Studying the events of the past and reading current news, classes in American history reviewed the growth of the nation and kept abreast of daily happenings in these troubled times. World history students read the story of ancient and medieval civilizations and related it to the events of modern times. Geography classes studied the physical aspects of various countries and learned of their interdependence in trade and commerce. Advanced courses, such as economics, sociology, and problems of American democracy, gave interested students an opportunity to study governmental, economic, and sociological problems.

Mr. Clare, exchange teacher from England, was a member of the history faculty during 1963-64. During June-July 1963, Miss Hatch, department head, participated in a cultural exchange program in West Germany.

Students in Mrs. Whitesell's world history classes exhibit several of their class projects.

TV history students concentrate on note-taking at they listen to the morning telecast.

Julie Kemper and Patsy Starling find that they have a wide variety of student projects for their bulletin board in Problems of American Democracy.

Students in Mrs. Stephens' class demonstrate the solution of a geometry problem.

Miss Parnell checks a blackboard assignment and explains to an algebra student an easier way to learn factoring.

Students of mathematics, science explore

Central High School kept up with the progressive pace in mathematics by the addition of new equipment and new courses. This year, for the first time, three over-head projection machines were in use in the department. Five students were chosen to take an-, alytical geometry. General Mathematics II, a modern approach to the foundation of mathematics, was offered as an elective course. Many sophomores ventured into their first or second year of algebra, while juniors and seniors pursued, disjunctively or in several combinations, plane geometry and the elective courses of solid geometry, trigonometry, and college algebra. These courses were designed to teach students the importance of neatness and accuracy and to prepare them for further study in mathematics.

Miss Welch's advanced algebra class concentrates on the solution of a difficult theorem.

Students in chemistry class concentrate on the textbook assignment as Mrs. Roberts and the lab assistants make preparation for an experiment.

Mrs. Dockery's students in physical science and physics find the study of gravity an exciting topic.

'unknowns' in worlds of nature, numbers

Mrs. Conrad's biology students are fascinated as they study the anatomy of a starfish.

Opening wide avenues of learning to a large number of students, science teachers introduced many new concepts in every field of science. Sophomores were introduced to the science department with a year of biology, while juniors and seniors who manifested a real interest in science moved on to physical science, chemistry, and physics. Dissecting an earthworm, looking through a microscope to find life in a drop of water, or finding out blood types made biology class exciting. Chemistry and physics students seemed to wear an expression of wonder and amazement whenever they felt that a mysterious "unknown" had been solved. All science students had the opportunity through Science Fair projects to show what they could do with the knowledge gained from class study and experimentation.

One of the most important facets of homemaking is the act of cooking. Four of Mrs. Tankard's students demonstrate their skill.

Home economics courses offered girls of Central High the opportunity to acquire an adequate knowledge of homemaking, family relationships, and child development. Study was made in personal and social development as well as in housekeeping skills. This year's homemaking classes acquired new dexterity in sewing and cooking-from handy needle to versatile sewing machine; from saucepan to pressure cooker. For future reference the girls received instruction in food preparation, wardrobe and budget planning, good grooming, and child care. Programs, panel discussions, and projects were designed to help the girls achieve the mature judgement necessary for managing successful homes and rearing happy children.

Homemakers of tomorrow are trained today

Mrs. Williams' sewing class stages a miniature fashion show to display the dresses made by the girls.

Girls of the first semester homemaking group "practice" their skills as they prepare to give a tea for their classmates.

Business courses stress vocational skills

Mr. Cudd points out to one of his secretaries in the Business Office some of the fine points of mimeograph work.

Students in Mr. Lyons' shorthand class strive to attain maximum speed as they take a dictation lesson.

To prepare students for good positions in business, the Commercial Department offered instruction in numerous fields. Students striving to take dictation just a little faster each day acquired valuable shorthand skills, while future secretaries developed accuracy and speed amid clacking typewriters. A would-be accountant struggled with the complexities of debits and credits, aided by new adding and calculating machines. Another class discovered the "Do's and Don'ts" of economics. The joy of conquering the "touch 'n type" system over the "hunt 'n peck" system was ample reward to typing students for time and energy spent in diligent practice. With the knowledge and skill gained in these courses, graduates felt confident of securing good positions in the bus-iness world.

Shop, drafting spur creative talent

With a look of approval, Mr. Mann supervises his woodworking students at the sander.

Industrial arts classes, including courses in woodwork, metal work, and mechanical drawing, attracted many students to try their hands at a more orderly approach to everything they attempted. Students in woodwork classes learned first to build small articles and then to construct larger pieces of furniture. Each student made a project of his own. In metalwork classes the boys learned to operate welders, lathes, surface grinders, and milling machines. They also acquired the technique of metal-casting. Members of the mechanical drawing class mastered the skill of detail drawings, including blueprints and house plans. At the Spring Show, the boys displayed their projects—a variety of model homes, ranging in cost from moderate to expensive.

After much planning, precise drawing, and meticulous work, Gary Smithwick presents to his teacher, Mr. Bays, his class project of a model home.

Mr. Holder shows his students how to operate the drill press in the safest and most effective way.

stopping, backing, turning. Starting. parking, and driving in traffic on the street or on the highway—all these skills were acquired by Driver Education students at Central High this year. Previous lessons had taught the eager students regulations concerning driving and had given them the opportunity to take tests for steadiness, depth perception, eye dominance, glare and color vision, visual acuity and reaction time. Students were so much concerned after learning all the hazards and responsibilities of driving that many began to wonder, "Will I ever get my driving license?" But, after eighteen hours "under the wheel" of the dual-control cars, and with the experience and complete mastery of safe driving rules, they were ready to pass tests for the driving license and become safe drivers on the highway.

'Safety', aim of driver education course

Students listen as Mr. Myers explains a few rules of the road in preparation for their "under the wheel" training.

Physical ed program

Formal drills in calisthenics build muscles, provide healthful exercise for these boys in physical education class.

Under the direction of Miss Hester and Miss Floyd, girls at Central High learned sportsmanship as well as physical fitness. By participating in sports such as track, tennis, and shuffleboard, each individual had an opportunity to display her ability. Muscular coordination and sportsmanship were demonstrated in the team sports of basketball, volleyball, speedball, soccer, and softball. Physical education and calisthenics were synonymous, and yet they both meant much funfilled action as well as strenuous exercise. Supplying health-giving exercise for students of all needs and abilities was the goal of the boys' physical education department. Under the direction of Coach Simeon, the boys participated in homeroom intramural contests, physical education classes, and the varsity athletic program.

Quinn Koontz and David Sherrill demonstrate their agility as they practice for an important basketball game.

Orchestra inspires music appreciation

Because of the large number of students enrolled in the Central High orchestra this year, it was necessary to form a second orchestra of violins, which played with the full orchestra in concerts. With Mr. Barry Ruth as conductor and Mrs. Boyce C. Fouts as assistant, the orchestra had an active season. In November the group gave two concerts, featuring violin and flute soloists. With the approach of the Yuletide season, the orchestra presented a Christmas program in collaboration with other groups of the music department. Anticipating All-State Orchestra in January, many members practiced diligently for their auditions. In the spring the whole entourage competed in the State Music Festival in Greensboro.

The chamber orchestra, a small, select group, met weekly to rehearse for its performances at clubs and various community activities.

perform at halftime shows and on parade

By entertaining at halftime shows, arousing school spirit at football games and pep rallies, marching in Homecoming and Christmas parades, and presenting several concerts, the Marching band carried out its purpose to provide music for school and civic activities. The Symphonic and Concert bands combined to form the Marching band, which met three days a week after school to prepare for their engagements. The band held its annual candy sale to raise money for the uniform fund. Last summer the Marching band was represented by eight of its members at the All Star Band.

Marching band was directed by Mr. David Carter. Drum major was Bobby Fowler. The group was governed by a band council with its elected officers—Curtis Collins, president; John Slate, vice-president; Janice Yow, secretary; and Susan Chandler, treasurer.

Under the direction of Mr. David Carter and assistant student director Jimmy Johnson, the Commodores, popular Dance band, had a busy and rewarding year. Practicing every day during seventh period, the boys worked hard to prepare for their engagements. Performing at the annual PSTA Open House, accompanying the participants in the Student Council Talent Show, and entertaining for various civic clubs were only a few of their many activities. They worked diligently to prepare for their jazz concert, which was presented in the early spring. Members of the band attended a Dance Band Clinic at Appalachian State College to improves their musical skills and to become better acquainted with the techniques of other bands. Participation in the Dance band enabled its members to gain a knowledge of popular music, old and new.

Dance Band tunes up so that it may lend its audience a delightful program.

Concert, symphonic bands perform well

In order that its members might work more efficiently, the large Marching band was divided into two separate groups—the Symphonic band, meeting at sixth period and the Concert band, meeting at fourth period. The schedules of the two groups included many activities. Mr. David Carter, director, helped them prepare for their various public performances and assisted individuals in au-

Chorus strives for place in choir

Every day, as the bell signaled the beginning of sixth period, members of the Girls' Chorus took their places in the music room and worked diligently and faithfully on their repertoire for the year. They sang in the Christmas program given by the choral department and participated in the annual District Music Contest. As they sought to learn proper breathing and struggled with the difficulties of sight reading, a laudable ambition was in their minds-to achieve a place in the choir. Officers who led them in their various undertakings were Kathy Taylor, president; Donella Newton, vice-president; Lannie Ross, secretary; and Marianne Hutton, treasurer. Director was Mrs. Florence Greene.

CHORALETTE OFFICERS: Sherry Wagner, secretary; Wanda Monroe, president; Ann Sorrell, vice-president; Pam Culler, treasurer.

Girls in advanced choral work, known as the Choralettes, spent more time singing than the beginners and provided programs for various civic clubs in High Point. They joined with other choral groups in presenting the Christmas program and also took part in the District Music Contest. Individual members of the Choralettes, along with the A Cappella choir, participated in the Festival Chorus in Greensboro and in the Choral Workshop at Chapel Hill.

Officers were Wanda Monroe, president; Ann Sorrell, vice-president; Sherry Wagner, secretary; and Pam Culler, treasurer. Accompanists were Kay Clinard and Roma Bowen on the piano. Director was Mrs. Florence Greene.

Octet, quartet present musical programs

BOYS' QUARTET: Jimmy Byrd, Van Reames, Suzie Eaves, accompanist; Jerry Jones, Lynn Curlee.

The A Cappella Choir, directed by Mrs. Florence Greene, and accompanied by Suzie Eaves, Jerry Jones, Lynn Curlee, and Rickey Coffey on the piano, presented many programs for school assemblies, civic clubs, and churches of High Point. The choir also gave several public concerts during the year and participated in the District Music Contest held in the spring. Throughout the year the group worked to achieve its goal of stimulating in each choral student an understanding and an appreciation of musical values and of finding a rewarding means of selfexpression through singing. Officers for the vear were David Austin, president; Suzie Eaves, vice-president; Sallie Bulla, secre-tary; and Van Reames, treasurer. The group achieved its practical project of purchasing new robes for its members.

A newly-formed choral group this year was the Girls' Octet. Their programs were presented to churches and civic organizations that desired small group entertainment. Accompanied on the piano by Suzie Eaves, the singers included Chris Allred, Anita Phipps, Judy Harris, Linda Corn, Pam Culler, Sharon Surrett, Andrea Wheless, and Kay Grant.

The Boys' Quartet also performed where there was a request for small group entertainment. Composed of boys from the A Cappella choir, the quartet included the following students: Jerry Jones, Lynn Curlee, Van Reames, and Jimmy Byrd. Suzie Eaves was the accompanist.

Girls' Octet: Andrea Wheless, Anita Phipps, Judy Harris, Lynda Corn, Sharon Surrett, Pam Culler, Chris Allred, Kay Grant, Ricky Coffey, accompanist.

CLASSES . . .

As the ambitious seniors marched toward their goal, making the pathway clear for the promising junior class, the eager sophomores fell in line—each proud to be a part of Central High School.

Sophomores found school enlivened by many new experiences. During the fall, many a sophomore's notebook was filled with sales literature as each began his class project to sell magazines. In October, members of the class helped with the Homecoming Parade.

As upperclassmen, the juniors resumed old friendships and made many new ones. With enthusiasm they chose red rings, produced a junior class play, and attended the Junior-Senior Prom. With sobriety they realized that soon they would become the leaders of the school.

The thrill of actually being a senior, with the privilege of hearing "seniors first," brought with it many responsibilities. Seniors surveyed job possibilities or took College Boards, applied for scholarships, and made their choices of colleges with great care. Memories of the past flashed through their minds: first exams, the chemistry test failed, the oral book report not prepared, the research paper with footnotes all wrongthen the long hours of study and work—and finally the approving glance of a teacher when errors were all corrected and grades became satisfactory. With poignancy the seniors realized that the days and weeks had been too short; classes, dances, meetingsall had hastened the ending of a year characterized by small disappointments but eventually crowned by larger triumphs.

1964 Seniors experience rewarding year

Five hundred students looked to their graduation as the culmination of three joyous years never to be forgotten. The class of 1964—the first that Dr. Scott had guided through all the years of Central High worked steadily toward its high goal. Leading the seniors in their activities were Bobby Gray, president; Eddie Edwards, vice-president; Sallye Woodruff, secretary; and Barbara Myers, treasurer. Miss Frances Haywood and Miss Florence Weaver, advisers, guided the class through a very rewarding year. Among the activities of the class were selecting Susan McMullan and Keith Goodwin as 1964 mascots, performing in the senior play, "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," and choosing senior superlatives. Among the important events were the Junior-Senior prom, Senior banquet, and Awards' Day. Finally the longawaited day arrived—graduation! As senior class advisers, Miss Haywood and Miss Weaver are always available for counseling and advice.

JUNIOR CLASS ADVISERS: Mr. A. J. Simeon, Mrs. Jo Ann E. Williamson.

As his second year of high school began, the cheerful junior became a member of the "middle" class at Central High. Now, as an upperclassman, he was no longer shy and doubtful, for traffic rules and school customs ceased to confuse him as he settled down to hard work. Football games boosted and renewed his school spirit. The dreaded midterm exams reminded him that half his junior year had passed.

During the second term, the junior received his class ring and realized perhaps for the first time that he was part of a united group of people, dedicated with his classmates to a sense of responsibility and a pride of achievement.

The long-awaited time arrived as the junior made preparation for the annual Junior-Senior prom. Much thought and planning went into the dance as it was the climax of the junior year.

As the school year closed with final examinations and the junior watched his senior friends prepare for graduation, there came the realization that only a short time remained in which he himself must prepare for his future. It was with this attitude that he looked forward to the status of senior as a significant milestone on his march toward the future. Elizabeth Adams Faye Adcock Jimmy Allen Nancy Allgood Garland Amos

After mastering the problem of "up" and "down" towers and finding their way around the building, the sophomores settled down to a year of hard work. Supervised by Miss Neely and Mrs. Cathey, sophomores began the 1963-64 in September with an enthusiastic class meeting and organization of their magazine sales campaign. Top individual salesmen and high homerooms received prizes during the sale. Meeting again in October, the sophomores elected four outstanding students to lead their class: Kenneth Rhyne, president; Paul Ingle, vice-president; Martha Given, secretary; and Ann Davis, secretary. Sophomores served on committees and worked on floats for the Homecoming parade. Many joined clubs, musical organizations, and councils. Several sophomores brought honor to their class by their outstanding athletic accomplishments. As the year drew to a close, the sophomore class realized the important role it had played at Central High this year.

ORGANIZATIONS ... Twelfth top award

Room 102 echoed with sounds of clicking typewriters and scurrying feet as the PEMICAN staff worked feverishly to meet the deadline. Editor Judy Wilson, associate editor Willi Krapels, sports editor Mike Young, and chief photographer Dickie Dickens began their duties early in the spring of 1963. Senior copy editor Patsy Starling gave assignments to her writers, who began the all-too-long task of turning out acceptable copy. Picture editor Barbara Morrison performed the task of arranging schedules for group pictures. After selling ads, business managers Jack Green and Narda Vincent prepared the ad section for printing. As the deadline arrived and the material was sent to the publisher, the staff had fond hopes that the 1964 PEMICAN would win Central High's thirteenth All-American award.

As time grew shorter, members of the POINTER staff rushed to meet their deadline. Room 320 was a beehive of activity as busy writers worked with copy sheets or galley pages. The news editor and her reporters, huddled in a corner, made final adjustments in their layouts. The feature editor proof-read a survey report, while the sports editor rustled through a stack of papers in search of a basketball game score. A similar scene was being enacted in another room where the business staff strove to uphold the financial end of the paper. The editor-in-chief and the business manager moved reassuringly among their groups as each member worked frantically to finish his task. Finally seventh period ended, and the material was rushed off to the printer. With a long sigh the staff relaxed—only to be unnerved again by the reminder that this was only one of ten issues.

Reaching toward their goal of establishing and maintaining leadership, followership, and democracy among the students, the Student Council inaugurated projects which emphasized school spirit and participation in school-sponsored activities. In an informative orientation program, SC set sophomores straight on the subject: "What's What at Central." During the year SC sponsored the Inter-Club Council, the Talent Show, Teacher Appreciation Week, and a Club of the Month contest. As new activities of 1963-64, SC appointed an Anti-Drop-Out Committee and undertook the sponsorship of a Citizen of the Month contest. As SC members gave their yearly reports, they felt that their hard work had successfully created good will among the student body.

Character, leadership, scholarship, and service—these were the qualities of Central High students who achieved acceptance into the National Honor Society. The students pledged themselves to uphold the standards of the society in an impressive candle-light ceremony held twice this year. After each induction a reception was given in the home economics living room for new members and their parents. Miss Maxalynn Mourane and Mrs. Cecyle O'Bryant were advisers.

Many activities and special projects were carried on during the year. During the first week of school, NHS members gave a coke party for the faculty and presented each teacher with a gift. They also worked with the Beta Club in sponsoring College Day. To finance their various activities, members sold stationery and calling cards.

NHS members Trip Sizemore, Jane Snotherly, and Sallye Woodruff gain ideas from a High Point College marker which will be used in a similar marker as a National Honor Society gift to Central High School.

who lead in scholarship and service

Composed of 160 members, the Beta Club stressed scholarship and service to school and community. This year juniors with an average of 92 and seniors with an average of 88 were eligible for membership. Two impressive induction ceremonies were held during the year—one in the fall and one in the spring.

Beta Club members began their program of service with the opening of school. They built a Homecoming float, participated in the parade, and in co-operation with the National Honor Society sponsored College Day. In April the group was represented at the state Beta Club convention. Advisers for the Beta Club included Miss Geneva Highfill, Miss Martha Mayse, and Miss Wanda Walton.

Masque and Gavel, national honor society to encourage high quality speech and dramatics, sought to maintain the purpose of the organization by entering oral contests and participating in class plays. At their regular twice-a-month meetings, they carried out activities and projects designed to assist students in raising standards of speech. Members took an active part in the World Peace Speaking Contest and in the speech contest sponsored by the local Civitan Club. In addition, they presented a talent assembly program and a group of one-act plays. In the spring they attended the State Speech Festival at Wake Forest College, Advisers were Miss Hudgins and Miss Ruth Goodman.

NFL stresses leadership through debating,

The National Forensic League, advised by Mrs. Roberts, offered experience in public speaking, debating, and other phases of speech to its members. This year's activities sought to emphasize leadership through more effective speech. During the year, NFL members participated in seven speech tournaments, four congresses, and attended the Wake Forest Speech Festival. Last spring the group produced two winners in a speech contest in Houston, Texas. Also there were three winners on the district level. There were twelve to eighteen members participating in each event. Much credit for the NFL achievements was due Mrs. Roberts, who accumulated a number of points towards an NFL service award.

STATE DEBATERS: David Kiel, John Robbins, Jamie Burnley, Ken Starling.

The debating teams of the National Forensic League, coached by Mrs. Rachel Roberts, had a busy year. Excluding the final district and state tournaments, the teams, which were alternated regularly, participated in 86 debates. These contests included five NFL tournaments (comprising a four-state area), the Barkley Forum at Emory University (attended by invitation only), and the Wake Forest Speech Festival.

Various phases of socialized medicine furnished queries for each debate. Working at seventh period and on Saturday mornings, Central High debaters spent three hours a week preparing their approaches. At midseason David Kiel and John Robbins were undefeated in their forensic battles. Interest ran high, and several members made plans to spend the summer studying debate at Wake Forest College.

Quill and Scroll encourages journalists

Thirteen seniors were selected this year for membership in Quill and Scroll, international journalistic honor society of high school students. Members were chosen on the basis of scholarship, citizenship, and meritorious work on the staff of PEMICAN or POINTER. The society encouraged and rewarded individual achievement in journalism.

Composed of lettermen in athletics, the Monogram Club carried on several useful projects during the past year. To raise necessary funds they sold Bison booster tags, sweat shirts, pennants, and Bison car stickers. During the fall meeting of the North Carolina Athletic Association at Central High, the boys assisted their adviser, Coach A. J. Simeon, with many details of procedures and programs. They helped to maintain decorum at all games and endeavored to uphold the dignity of the Monogram Club. Also they tried to encourage boys in their school work and to set an example of good sportsmanship and conduct. In addition, they sought to develop the highest athletic standards at Central High and to create a bond of fellowship and loyalty among lettermen.

Sponsored by the local Rotary Club and advised by Mr. Moss and Mr. Waugh, the newly-formed Inter-Act Club had for its purpose universal understanding. Meeting twice a month in the homes of members, the group planned ways and means to help the school and its program. With service as their watchword, Inter-Act members were on special duty at many school activities. In December the group acted as guides and general assistants for the Career Day program.

Officers were David Austin, president; David Elder, vice-president; Mike Meisky, secretary; and Bill Fagg, treasurer. Directors included D. Smith, J. Byrd, and J. McDowell.

French Club emphasizes spoken language,

In order to gain a better understanding of the French language, many students joined the French club this year. In fact, so many joined that it was necessary to divide the club into three groups. Advisers were Misses McDavid, Franklin, and Weaver.

The French Club gave its members an opportunity to use classroom French in an informal situation. At the meetings, held once a month, second-year and third-year students heard from guest speakers about France and the customs of her people. They learned songs in French and at Christmas went caroling. Much of the work involved in Language Week was handled by French Club members. One important event was the banquet with food prepared from French recipes. Also included in the various activities were games, crossword puzzles, and skits in French.

A Spanish fiest atopped the list of Spanish Club projects for the year 1963-1964. The club also sponsored a float in the Homecoming parade. At the regular meetings on third Mondays, members gave programs designed to promote a better understanding between the United States and Spanishspeaking countries of the world. The group also made a study of Spanish countries and their customs. The informal atmosphere of the meetings encouraged the use of spoken Spanish and thus became a valuable supplement to classroom work. During National Language Week, the Spanish Club joined forces with the French Club and the Junior Classical League to present a series of international programs. Advisers for the group were Miss Dolores Joseph and Mr. Thomas Scott.

SCIENCE CLUB OFFICERS: Row 1—Benson, Grady, Krapels, Hekler, Thayer.

The doors of the fascinating world of science were opened wide this year as Science Club members became more aware of the world around them. They explored their interests and abilities in the various fields of science as they took tours to various scientific locations, saw movies, performed experiments, and listened to guest speakers. A special project of the club was sponsorship of the annual Science Fair. All members had opportunity through Science Fair projects to show what they could do with knowledge gained from experimentation. Advisers included Mr. Clark, Miss Colliver, Mrs. Dockery, and Mrs. Roberts.

In its second year of work at Central High School, Anchor Club continued to press toward its high goal—improvement of school and community. Meeting twice each month, the group arranged programs designed to develop initiative and leadership in its members. The work of the club also provided experience in living and working together co-operatively and in preparation for true citizenship. A special project of the club was assistance to handicapped children. Sponsored by the local Pilot Club and advised by Miss Joyce and Mrs. Hilton, the members strove to live up to their motto—"Anchored We Hold."

Objectives of the Future Business Leaders of America were to develop competent business leadership and to prepare for successful citizenship. They sought to achieve their goals through study and practical application of their skills. As a part of the regular program, the FBLA assisted teachers by typing and duplicating material and by preparing study outlines. At their meetings on the second Tuesday of each month, members investigated job opportunities in High Point and vicinity and listened to speakers on business topics. In the spring several delegates attended the state convention of Future Business Leaders of America in Winston-Salem. Advisers were Miss Medford and Mrs. Bryant.

FHA OFFICERS: Linda Feree, vice-president; Cheryl Martin, president: Leigh Horney, parliamentarian; Linda Snipes, treasurer; Jane Marsh, historian; Susan Teague, secretary.

The Future Homemakers of America, advised by Mrs. Tankard, sought "to contribute to the joys and satisfactions of family living" by engaging in studies and projects during the year. Their special studies placed emphasis on family friendship, marriage preparation, a "Stay in School" program, and a project to understand and help senior citizens in the community. As an extracurricular activity, the girls entered a float in the 1963 Homecoming parade. In October six delegates attended the FHA District Rally in Asheboro. In the spring a group attended the state convention in Raleigh.

FTA OFFICERS: Seated—Nancy Tysinger, vicepresident; Barbara Morrison, president. Standing— Mary Jo Lamar, secretary; Joy O'Berry, treasurer; Sara McIlvaine. historian.

Future Teachers of America, with Mrs. Martha Rogers and Miss Nancy Massengill as advisers, began their professional program early in the year. In October the group acted as guides and marshals at the District Teachers' Meeting in High Point. During American Education Week, FTA officers conducted devotions over the public address system; and at PSTA Open House in November, members acted as guides for the parents who visited the school. Also in November the FTA sent representatives to the state convention held at Duke University. Toward the close of the year, the group held an induction party for new members and new officers, and, later, a picnic where they enjoyed another happy meeting together before graduation.

Hi-Y extends helpful service programs,

"To create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character" was the aim of Hi-Y during 1963-64. To achieve these goals, the boys met once a week to plan social events, programs, and activities. Projects for the year included selling tickets for the YMCA, selling sponges, selling and distributing Christmas trees, and cutting oranges for athletic teams. On December 13, 14, 15, the boys were hosts to the fortieth annual Hi-Y Conference of the Carolinas. For that occasion, Hi-Y members assisted with programs and acted as guides for the various meetings. School advisers were Mr. Holder and Mr. Lyons.

Jr. Civinettes encourage citizenship,

Continuing their policy of "encouraging good citizenship and rendering service to school and community," the Junior Civinettes completed many service projects for the year. The girls helped to clean the school grounds; and for each home football game, they worked in concession stands. As a community service they visited patients in rest homes. To finance their activities, the Junior Civinettes sold fruit cakes and Halloween candy and assisted the Junior Civitans in sponsoring a car wash project. Before Christmas they decorated each homeroom door at Central High, thereby spreading cheer throughout the school. At the state convention in Burlington in May, Judy Christensen and Sallye Woodruff were candidates for offices. Judy was elected lieutenant governor of Zone 7.

The Junior Civitans, advised by Mr. Rogers and Mr. Shrader, had an active 1963-64 program. They helped to beautify the campus by planting grass and by assisting in a clean-up campaign. As a community service they donated Thanksgiving baskets to needy families. Other activities included printing basketball and wrestling schedules for students, supporting a boy's membership at YMCA, maintaining the Victory Bell and the Athletic Events sign, and working in concession stands at football games. To finance their projects, the boys sold fruitcakes and Halloween candy and sponsored a car wash. Reid Marsh and Paul Brigman were delegates to the conference in Gastonia, and in the spring a majority of the group attended the state convention in Burlington.

During 1963-64 the Junior Classical League continued its work of promoting a better understanding and appreciation of the language, literature, and civilization of ancient Greece and Rome. Students who had completed, or who were pursuing, a course in second-year Latin, were eligible for membership. Special studies included projects in history, law, customs, art, and religion. In addition, JCL members learned Roman songs and produced Roman plays. They also watched colored films on the Roman ruins in Italy, Austria, Spain, and France. An important event of the year was the Roman banquet. In the spring several delegates, accompanied by their adviser Miss Hunter. attended the state JCL convention at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Time, work, responsibility, patience—these were the ingredients that went into the making of successful American Red Cross Youth Volunteers, during 1963-64. The girls, selected from a large number of applicants, joined with experienced volunteers in giving up their time in order to provide service to High Point Memorial Hospital and to Presbyterian Home, year-round. Summer duties included work at the Bloodmobile, the Colfax Well-Baby Clinic, and the Orthopedic Clinic.

Projects for the year included washing athletic buses, cleaning the school grounds, providing a meal for a needy family at Christmas, and posting room numbers in the halls for clear directions.

Twice a year boys desiring membership in the Key Club were asked to compose paragraphs stating their reasons for wanting to become a part of the group. Members were selected on the basis of the application and the good character of the individual.

Y-Teens have fun, attain understanding,

Concentrating on service to others, Y-Teens spent a busy year planning and executing programs designed to increase fun, fellowship, and understanding of themselves and others. The growth of the individual in fellowship with people of all races, religions, and nationalities was their goal. At their weekly meetings the three groups of girlssophomores, juniors, and seniors-planned projects and activities. Making tray favors, visiting orphanages and old-age homes, and addressing Easter Seal envelopes proved to be inspiring service projects for the different groups. Christmas activities included preparing boxes for needy families, decorating Christmas trees for hospitals and rest homes, and going caroling. In all their activities Y-Teens sought to realize the highest ideals in living.

New to CHS in 1963-64, the Health Careers Club sought to acquaint students with career opportunities in medicine and related fields of work. Members read widely in their chosen areas of study and at their regular programs listened to guest speakers representing the fields of laboratory and X-ray technology, physical therapy, and public health nursing. In November several members of the club attended a Health convention at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro. Leaders for 1963-64 included Willi Krapels, president; Judy Christensen, vice-president; Jo Carol Bulla, secretary; and Steve Bernard, treasurer. Advisers were Mrs. Flowers and Mrs. Conrad.

Purpose of the new People-to-People Club at Central High School was to broaden the individual student's understanding of people in other lands. At their meetings on second and fourth Tuesdays, members viewed slides depicting the manners and customs of other lands or listened to speeches by world travelers.

As a part of a national organization headed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, the People-to-People Club enabled its members to gain much knowledge of other countries and their people. Serving as leaders for 1963-64 were Mary Ghosn, president; Jack Green, vice-president; Juanita Chance, secretary; and Julia Parker, treasurer. Adviser was Miss Pat Heath.

Better attitude, goal of Drivers Club

In its third year of service at Central High School, the Safe-Teen Drivers Club continued its work of promoting right attitudes toward driving on city street or highway. Through the use of slogans, posters, and short talks, members sought to improve safer driving habits among teen-agers. Good manners and a sense of responsibility in driving were themes of several meetings. At PEMICAN press time, plans were under way for sponsorship of the annual rodeo. Advisers for Safe-Teen Drivers Club were Mr. J. Frank Shields and Mr. Joe Don Myers. SAFE-TEEN DRIVERS CLUB OFFICERS: Herbie Council, vice-president; Allan Gray, sergeant-atarms; Charlie Bowers, president; Rupert Whitaker, chaplain.

Fifty-one capable students worked in the four offices to contribute to the smooth operation of the school. In the Dean's office students made out tardy slips, typed the daily bulletin, and ran errands. Guidance office helpers typed letters, ran errands, recorded data, and made appointments for Mrs. Harris, Miss Haywood, and Mrs. McCurry. Sorting mail, unpacking and stamping textbooks, and answering the telephone were just a few of the many duties performed by the General Office girls. Assistants in Coach Simeon's office kept the files, answered the telephone, and ran errands. These office assistants, who gave up their study hall time to serve the school, gained valuable office training that will help them in the future.

Students aid school by typing, driving,

Student secretaries, a committee composed of members of the Future Business Leaders of America, rendered many helpful services to the faculty and the school. Supervised by Mr. Cudd, the girls willingly and cheerfully applied their skills by typing business letters, cutting stencils for tests and study guides, and running off thousands of pages on duplicating machines.

Every day hundreds of students boarded the orange school buses and rode to and from the different schools in High Point. Ten dependable student drivers, advised by Mr. Robbins, transported these lively passengers to elementary and junior high schools as well as to Central High. By carrying out their responsibility to the student bus driver organization, the boys rendered a valuable service to the school.

radio and library aides serve school

To provide school supplies for students, fourteen girls, with the help of Mrs. Dorothy Whitesell, worked in the school store. From 8:40 in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon, at least two girls each period sold school supplies to their fellow students. These girls not only rendered a helpful service to the school but also received valuable sales training and experience.

Supervised by Mr. Bernie Sheffield, projection staff members set up movie and slide projectors, tape recorders, and record players. They also operated various types of films for teachers. At least one member of the projection staff assisted Mr. Sheffield each period during the day. Another duty performed by the projection staff was that of showing movies to scheduled classes. Radio staff members, directed by Mr. Sheffield, worked from the WHPS station at school to broadcast news, music, and weather reports. Interested in radio electronics, the boys were able to apply their knowledge and perform a service for the school through their work. Central High, one of the few schools in the state to have its own station, maintained high standards of broadcasting.

Advised by Mrs. Nancy Poston, students of the library staff assisted with routine work of the library for an hour each day. Members of the staff helped Mrs. Poston by checking in and issuing books at the desk, keeping books shelved, processing new books, filing cards for the card catalogue, and working on library bulletin boards. Because of their co-operation, Mrs. Poston had more time to help students with the selection of books and research material.

Homecoming 1963, sponsored by the cheerleaders, was one of the most exciting events of the football season. The parade included 22 floats and two marching bands. A float by the Hi-Y Club won first place.

During halftime of the football game, Queen Jeanne Murrow was crowned by Mayor Floyd Mehan, and the Homecoming Court was presented. Miss Murrow was escorted by David Sherrill. Attendants were Maid of Honor Debby Wall, escorted by Bobby Gray; Senior Attendant Suzie Eaves, escorted by Danny Poteat; Senior Attendant Irene Xepolis, escorted by Craig Sanders; Junior Attendant Andi Marsden, escorted by Mike Helmstetler; and Sophomore Attendant Rita Watkins, escorted by Charlie Strickland.

The gridiron contest between High Point and Salisbury drew hundreds of enthusiastic fans and resulted in a 14-7 victory for the Bison. A sock hop was later held in the gym to honor the Homecoming Court and the Bison team.

ATHLETICS ... Teamwork proves factor

Although the first half of the 1963 season was tragic for the Black Bison, courage and determination led them as they charged from near extinction to conclude the season with a five-game winning streak.

Wilmington: A stubborn Bison defense held Wilmington to one touchdown while the Bison ground away a touch of their own to equalize the deficit. Each touchdown came as a climax to long drives. A Bison-77-yard drive paid off in the third quarter as C. Hill crashed over from the 3 following a 53 yard C. Hill to D. Idol pass play.

Gray: Inexperience was the downfall of the Bison in their second game of the season. Ninety yards of penalties cost the Bison valuable yardage as Gray hit the Bison for 198 yards. A Ken Rhyne aerial in the waning seconds of the first quarter led to the lone Bison touchdown, as a cobra-like passing attack from the Grayhounds sent the Bison down the road of defeat, 14-7. Durham: For the second year in succession a stone wall defense by the Bison sent the Durham Bulldogs down the road to defeat. The visiting Bison arrived in Durham a solid two-touchdown underdog, but the determined High Pointers had made up their minds to win. High Point drew first blood in the opening period as E. Edwards broke through the Bulldog line with L. Culler converting the extra point. High Point led 7-6 at halftime. The Bison added two insurance touchdowns in the final quarter, completing a 21-7 rout over Durham.

R. J. Reynolds: Defense was again the key to victory, but this time the tables had turned. With only 47 yards rushing, the usually powerful Bison offense found the Black Demon forward wall invincible. Taking advantage of all breaks, the Demons played almost errorless ball, winning 13-7.

Lexington: On October 4, the determined Bison entered Lexington High School stadium with high hopes of regaining the form which had led them to a previous victory over Durham. Had it not been for an inspired Yellow Jacket team, the Black Bison's hope could have materialized. Lexington's offense completely outclassed the Bison as the Yellow Jackets marched for two consecutive touchdowns in the third quarter. The final score was 13-7.

lead Black Bison to 6-3-1 season

Salisbury: The Bison's first conference victory came in the contest with the Salisbury Yellow Jackets. While holding the Salisbury offense to a minus 9 yards rushing, the Bison meat-grinding offense churned up the sod for 203 yards. Charlie Hill sparked the Bison attack with two spectacular first quarter jaunts. Hill scampered 60 yards for the initial Bison score, followed by a 50 yard run, giving High Point a 14-7 victory.

Page: The Bison blitz struck again at the Page Pirate ship. For the third time without a defeat, the powerful Bison beat Page High of Greensboro. A second-half surge by the potent Bison offense and an intercepted pass by Bucky Kester brought the Bison a 19-7 come-from-behind victory over the Pirates.

Charlotte Harding: Next on the High Point agenda was a non-conference battle with Harding. Exhibiting a superior defensive effort, the Bison crashed through the Ram forward wall time after time, holding Harding to a lowly 27 yards total offense. The scoring was evenly distributed, with Charlie Hill, Trip Sizemore, and Freddie Barrett sharing the scoring honors in a 21-14 Bison victory.

Terry Shankle arrives on the scene just as Ken Rhyne is tackled by a member of the Harding team.

About to hit the turf, Bison halfback Terry Shankle lunges ahead to gain valuable yardage in the game with Grimsley.

Grimsley: The Black Bison, out of the State Tournament but anxious to save a piece of glory from the 1963 season, clobbered archrival Greensboro Grimsley 14-0. The Bison began with a 25 yard run by C. Hill and concluded with a potent B. Kester interception and a spectacular 98 yard run back. This was the second straight win for the Black Bison over the Whirlies. The outstanding Bison defense was again too strong for the tournament-hopeful Grimsley crew. Outstanding defensive play was exhibited by Buck Kester, Bill Southerland, Barry Cook, and Terry Shankle.

Burlington: The Black Bison had Bulldog meat on their mind as they entered Albion Millis Stadium on November 8. After a heartbreaking 22-21 defeat the previous year, the Bison were charging for revenge. The High Point defense put the clamps on Burlington's explosive halfback, Eddie Hicklin, as Charlie Hill struck up a scoring parade of his own, grinding out three touchdowns. Adding to the Bison ground attack, Terry Shankle picked up healthy gains over Burlington's right tackle. The 21-6 romp concluded a successful Bison football campaign.

Coach Joe Don Myers led the Junior Varsity football team to a record of 4 wins and 4 losses this year. The eight games played by the Baby Bison this year were with Reynolds, Greensboro, Page, Gray, Burlington, Salisbury, Lexington, and Smith of Greensboro. A 14-6 win over Smith closed the season.

Powerful on offense, the Baby Bison lacked an effective defense and this accounted for their downfall in four games. L. Hinkle and R. Cranford were the outstanding members of the backfield; Diffendal, Garner, Byerly, and Williams were the star players on the line.

Bison cager Quinn Koontz sees no threat in guard Mark Murphy of the Reynolds team.

Raleigh: Displaying a radar-like shooting accuracy, the Raleigh Caps branded the Bison for their first defeat of the young season. In constant foul trouble the Bison tried vainly to overcome an inevitable Raleigh win, 81-67.

VARSITY BASKETBALL MANAGERS AND COACH: Jimmy Johnson, Coach Simeon, Bob Wright.

Rebounding, rugged defense aid Bison

From a position in mid-air, Bison cager McDowell hauls in a Bison rebound from Reynolds player David Stroup.

Bill Teague goes in for a lay-up as other Bison rush forward to retrieve a possible rebound.

Determined George McDowell bounds upon the back of a Gastonia player in a futile attempt to recover the ball for the Bison.

Wilmington: With McDowell bucketing 20 points, Koontz 17, and Teague 14, the Bison cagers cruised to an easy 78-60 win over a tough New Hanover team. Rebounding proved to be a key factor in the Bison attack.

Gastonia: Guard David Sherrill paced the way with 19 points, and Quinn Koontz added 17 as the Bison romped over Gastonia 58-37. The Green Wave put up a tough battle, but they could not overcome the raging Bison.

Raleigh: Settling down to a consistent brand of ball playing, the powerful Bison turned the tables on Raleigh's Capitals. Leading the Caps by six at the half, the Bison cagers clung tenaciously to the bulge throughout the second half, gaining a revengeful 62-57 victory.

Reynolds: In their first conference tilt of the season, the Black Bison held the upper hand and defeated the Black Demons of Reynolds 79-62. Balanced scoring led by McDowell, Sherrill, and Teague with 22, 20, and 18, respectively, proved too much for the Reynolds team.

Lexington: With a powerful offensive strategy, the Black Bison fought their way to a surprisingly easy 64-53 victory over a dewinged Lexington Yellow Jacket team.

Quinn Koontz adds points for the Bison against Burlington as George McDowell and Bill Teague watch anxiously.

Grimsley: Sinking two free throws in the waning seconds of the contest, Robby Culp clinched a 49-47 Bison win over a highly-rated Grimsley team. Although they were outshot from the floor, the Bison sank 66% of their tosses in conquering the Whirlies.

Mike Chafin hits for two points in the season opener against Myers Park as fellow players look on.

JV player John Nelson fights for a rebound with a Boyden cager as Bison center Steve McDowell awaits the outcome.

Bison grapplers experienced a good season in spite of injuries to players. Trip Sizemore, top in the 180 pound class, lost out because of an arm injury and David Kiel, outstanding in the 112 pound class, was handicapped because of a fall.

Participating sophomores showed strength for future wrestling. Sophomore Tommy Brucke finished his first season of wrestling with an 8-4 record.

Honors went to David Argo, undefeated sectional champion in the 120 pound class, and to Mike Meisky, sectional runner-up in the 127 pound class. These boys represented CHS in the State meet at Boone.

Putting the pressure on a Grimsley grappler, Mike Meisky, Bison 123 pounder, helps Central win a 27 to 21 victory.

Track team emerges fifth in conference

With only a fair performance the Black Bison track team finished the season with a record of two firsts, two seconds, and one third. In the opening game of the season on March 29, the Bison took a 74-39 victory, capturing 9 out of 13 first places. The quadrangular meet in Burlington found Central in second place with 32, while Raleigh copped first with 86½. Despite the athletic prowess of track stars Freddie Barrett, Rickey Wilcox, Paul Kindley, and Ralph Smith, the Bison came in fifth at the Central 4-A track meet in Greensboro. With a loss early in the season to Gray High, the girls' Varsity basketball team set out on a long winning streak. Co-captains Anne P. Young and Nikkie Smith paced the team to wins against Reynolds, Grimsley, Page, and Gray. At Pemican press time the girls had four more games to play.

The JV basketball girls scored two wins over Reynolds and Grimsley and two losses over Reynolds and Ferndale. Directors of girls' athletics were Miss Pat Hester and Miss Julia Floyd. A basketball banquet and an award for the most valuable player were scheduled to take place at the close of the season.

Varsity, JV cheerleaders support teams

Through vigorous practice and effort, the Varsity cheerleaders contributed much to school spirit with their enthusiastic yells. Headed by Jane Snotherly, president, the cheerleaders cheered the Bison through defeat and victory. Other officers included Anne Stephens, vice-president; Jeanne Murrow, secretary; and Becky Hutchens, treasurer. Assisting the officers were Dawn Scotten, Frances Franklin, Ginny Gray, Connie Calvert, Jane Tyson, and Bobbie Helm. Keeping in mind their goals of promoting school spirit and providing organized cheering for school sports, Varsity cheerleaders met with their advisers Miss Hester and Miss Neely every Tuesday and Thursday. In addition to their support at all games, the cheerleaders completed the following service projects: selling athletic tags, pins, bows, and ties; selling advertising for football programs; and sponsoring sock hops and pep rallies.

JV cheerleaders spend many hours after school perfecting their cheers.

Junior Varsity cheerleaders did their share of promoting school spirit by cheering at all JV basketball games and at all home football games. During the year the JV cheerleaders assisted the Varsity cheerleaders with Homecoming plans, and helped with pep rallies and sock hops. They sold football programs and, despite chilly weather, cheered in the stands at Varsity games. The girls met twice a week to plan their activities and practice their cheers. Advised by Miss Hester and Miss Neely, the group included Janice Clary, Carol Collins, Suzanne Crockett, Martha Donald, Susan Hoskins, Lucy Latimer, Molly Marsh, Jean Norman, and Head Cheerleader Sandra Stutts.

EVENTS ...

"Showboat" was the theme of the 1963 Talent Show presented by the Student Council. The action took place on a show-boat on the Mississippi River during the 1850's. Chairman of the event was Jay Burton, with Eddie Edwards as assistant chairman. Masters of ceremonies were Harry Lester and Charlie Morgan. Mr. David Carter arranged the theme song, which the Commodores played for the show. Student director was Betsey Creech, and faculty adviser was Mr. L. R. Clark.

All participants wore costumes in keeping with the period. Singing predominated the 17-act show, with several soloists and groups performing in this category. Mark Levine sang folk tunes, and the Boys' Octet vocalized. Les Chanteurs sang "Bali Hi," and the Six Stowaways sang "Please, Officer Krupke." Other numbers included piano solos, a dance routine, and a pantomime. Members of the Boys' Octet capture their audience with the singing of popular songs.

Teresa Wilson captivates her audience with the song "I Can't Help Lovin' That Man."

Keynote Speaker Tully Blair stresses realistic planning of vocational goals in his Career Day address to CHS students.

Attorney Ed Hardin explains to interested students some of the requirements of the legal profession.

Career Day emphasizes vocational goals

Newly organized this year, Career Day brought to Central High School students first hand descriptions of careers in the business, professional, and trade fields. During the three-hour program, 70 different people, all experienced in their work, brought accurate information concerning trends, requirements, salaries, conditions, and opportunities in their fields. They sought to strengthen the interest of pupils in school and to promote the realization that an education is important.

Keynote speaker was Mr. Tully D. Blair, of Winston-Salem, who stressed the importance of engaging in a realistic planning of vocational goals. Sponsors of the Career Day program were the High Point Rotary Club, the high school administration and faculty, and representatives from the business world. Faculty co-chairmen were Mrs. Janet R. McCurry and Mr. Kenneth G. Mann. Prospective journalists listen with interest to a speech by Editor Holt McPherson.

Students of Central High had the opportunity on College Day to confer with representatives from 47 colleges located in North Carolina and neighboring states. An annual event at Central High School, the College Day program gave opportunity for making decisions and plans.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors who were interested in continuing their education after graduation from high school conferred with representatives concerning scholarships, college entrance requirements, applications, and estimated expenses at the college of the choice.

Acting as hosts were members of Beta Club and National Honor Society. Miss Frances Haywood was faculty chairman. Home economics students served coffee and cake to college representatives, hosts, and committee chairmen.

Entrance requirements, courses of study, and expenses are a few of the points made clear to prospective college students on College Day.

Facts about their chosen college are interesting to these boys as they talk with the representative.

College Day encourages decisions, plans

For many students, College Day offers an opportunity to gain important information about various colleges.

The 1964 Senior Class play entitled "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" was presented February 15, 16, under the direction of Miss Wanda Walton and Miss Ruth Goodman. Based on Mark Twain's book of the same title, the play depicted the adventures of a young engineer who found himself thrown back into the Middle Ages.

Richard Thayer portrayed Hank Bennett, and Ann W. Young and Juanita Chance his sister Marion. Elizabeth Bryden and Linda Russell played Mrs. Bennett, Hank's mother. Portraying King Arthur was Phil Adams; Katie Heer and Ricky Collins portrayed Queen Guinevere. Jeff Willard played Merlin the magician; Virgil Carrick, Sir Sagamore; J. A. Barneycastle, Clarence; and Gary Turner, Sir Lancelot. Elaine, Queen Morgan Le Fay, and Sandy were played by Paula Appel and Judy Christensen; Vickie Morgan and Julia Parker; and Johnne Whicker and Teresa Wilson, respectively.

Junior Class presents 'Little Women'

Aunt March (Brenda Stewart) expresses her disapproval of the way the March household is run. Listening to her tirade, are Beth (Beverly Eckerd), Meg (Margaret Brookbank), Hannah the maid (Ellesa Utt), and Amy (Narda Vincent).

"Little Women," produced by the Junior Class on November 26-27, 1963, revealed good acting, staging, and costuming. Directed by Mrs. Barbara Laughinghouse and Miss Eleanor Tapp, the play related the growingup years of the March family with their joys and tragedies.

Richard Bullard and Chuck Beck played Mr. March, the father; while Sandra Dillard and Janine Gilliam played the mother of four very different daughters. Dianne Martin and Margaret Brookbank played Meg. Mary Key and Evelyn Marshall portrayed Jo, a tomboy of seventeen who is really a talented writer. Laura Lentz and Beverly Eckerd played Beth, a young invalid, while Gloria Halstead and Narda Vincent portrayed Amy, a schoolgirl.

Brenda Stewart and Carol Bryan played Aunt March. David Josephson and Phil Hunter played Mr. Lawrence. Laurie, Professor Bhaer, and John Brooke were played by Henry Whitfield, Ken Starling and David Elder. Hannah Mullet, the family servant, was portrayed by Suzanne McKinney and Ellesa Utt.

John Brooke (David Elder) and his wife Meg (Dianne Martin) proudly display their twins to Aunt March (Carol Bryan).

Like magic, the cafeteria had been transformed into a gala carousel scene. The occasion was the annual Junior-Senior prom. As the couples entered the ballroom, they were entranced by the romantic atmosphere. To the music of Art Lopez's band, the dancers floated gracefully around the floor.

For intermission entertainment several students performed: Judy Harris and Thad Ferree sang, and Mark Levine entertained with his folk songs and guitar. Genial Harry Lester emceed the presentation of Junior and Senior class officers and their dates to the dancers and guests. Faculty members, school board members, parents of the officers, and chaperones shared the evening with new teachers at Central High, who were special guests. Quinn Koontz, Pauletta Armstrong, Eddie Edwards, and Jeanne Murrow pause in their dancing for a friendly chat at Junior-Senior Prom.

Hope illumines life patterns at CHS

Graduation climaxes twelve years of hard work for the Class of '64.

"This rainbow looked like hope— Quite a celestial kaleidoscope."

This quotation from the immortal pen of an English writer expresses to some degree the emotion that CHS students feel as the year 1963-64 draws to a close.

Sophomores, with two more years ahead, may draw upon the vast experiences of the past year to guide them forward.

Juniors, with their two years of accumulated knowledge, may look ahead to their crowning year at CHS.

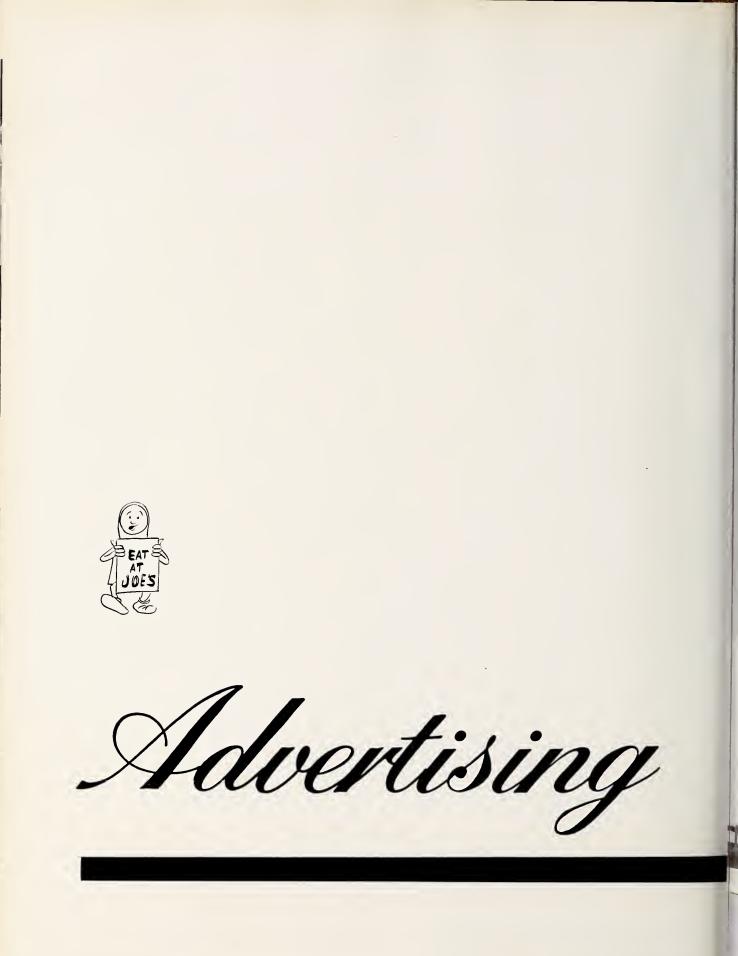

Seniors of 1964 will leave their beloved Alma Mater. They will carry with them the memory of three years of hard work, plus the joy and excitement of club meetings, football games, pep rallies, and class proms. They will tend to forget the tensions of job placement tests, college boards, and acceptance letters as they prepare for a new phase of life. Some will pursue their education at college; others will fill the numerous positions essential to the economic life and growth of our city.

Thus we see that hope has been the guiding force of our school life—hope for a better education, better job opportunities, a better community, and a better world. Hope has been the beacon that has lighted all the facets of our co-operative work at Central High School. May its beams continue to light the patterns of our lives in years to come.

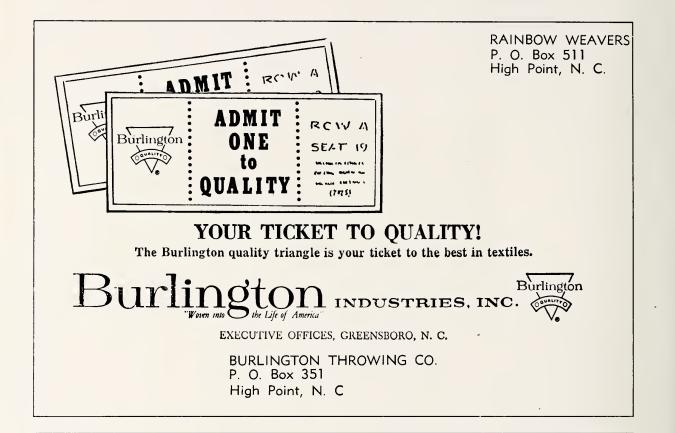

Traditional red-stoned rings highlight the Junior year.

Sechrest Funeral Home is unexcelled in the South for modern design and facilities. Located in park-like setting of $3\frac{1}{2}$ acres. Paved and lighted parking for 100 cars. Spacious Chapel seats over 200.

Sechrest Service has been described as "excellence based on experience." And it is true that since 1897 our constant ideal has been that through beauty, tenderness and reverence in final rites, every funeral shall clearly express a family's deepest love for a departed one. Whether arrangements are far a modest or elabarate ceremany, Sechrest creates an impressive tribute, camplete in every detail and within every family's means.
